Vanderlip Is Not Called

Witnesses Keep Committee Busy—Fall Was Dickered With Sinclair Almost as Soon as He Became Secretary.

Telegraph to The Freeman. Washington, Feb. 14.—Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier, who made sensational insinuations concerning the sale of the Marion Star to the late President Harding, did not get a chance today to tell the senate investigating committee what lay behind his veiled charges. Vanderlip sat all day in the committee room listening to sensational testimony offered by John C. Shaffer, former newspaper owner, E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the Interior under Fall, and others, and then was informed by the committee that it would be impossible to hear him until tomorrow. He was instructed to go to Washington.

Principal arguments today were: 1. John C. Shaffer, western publisher, revealed that Fall was dickered with Sinclair for the lease of Teapot Dome within a few days after he became secretary of the Interior. Shaffer himself admitted getting $125,000 out of the $1,000,000 that Sinclair paid to satisfy rival claimants. 2. Oscar Sutor, Standard Oil counsel, declared his company would not deal on the Pearl Harbor contract because he didn't think the whole project was legal. This contract was won by Doherty. 3. E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of the Interior under Fall, admitted he denied that the lease had been consummated a week after it was closed. He said he acted on Fall's orders, who had instructed bureau subordinates "to keep their mouths shut" concerning the lease. 4. Secretary Fall declined to ask the department of justice for an opinion as to the legality of the leases. It was revealed by a letter introduced in the record. The letter was written by H. Post Bain director of the bureau of mines, to Fall and dated seeking an opinion from Attorney General Daugherty. It stated he would like to make it as easy as possible for Mr. Doherty. 5. Finney said Fall himself admitted in details of the Teapot Dome lease and denied all responsibility for it. He said he thought of "an honest man but his actions are indiscreet."

6. Louis H. Brush and Roy D. Moore, who bought the Marion Star from Harding, telegraphed the committee requesting they be allowed to appear tomorrow to refute the veiled insinuations made against the deal by Vanderlip. The committee will hear them.

MOTOR HEARSE SKIDS; OCCUPANTS ESCAPE INJURY

Frank Moran of Gardiner Gets Involuntary Bath.

While returning from Poughkeepsie shortly after 7 o'clock Sunday night the motor hearse of Vanderlip, undertaker of New Paltz, skidded on the slippery road a short distance west of Otisville and crashed into the abutment of a bridge spanning a small creek. Mr. Pine, who was driving the machine remained in his seat and escaped injury. Frank Moran of Gardiner, accompanying him, jumped and landed in the creek getting a cold bath. The machine was not damaged except for a badly bent fender. The hearse had been to Poughkeepsie delivering a body at the New York Central Railroad Station for shipment and was returning to New Paltz. Mr. Pine said he had turned out to avoid hitting another machine, which was being driven toward Highland, and said the hearse skidded in loose snow which covered the road to several inches in depth.

Migration From New York Farms To Cities

Goes On; 40,500 Left In 1923; Enough Remain

Reports from 3,612 New York farms indicate that the population on these farms is 97.2 per cent. of the population on the same farms a year ago. On this basis the number of persons living on New York farms is estimated at 741,000. The United States census gave the number, in 1920, as 801,000. During the past year 40,500 men left farming for other occupations

Expert Urges Zoning Here

So City Will Be Prepared For Increase in Population and Industries That Will Soon Overflow From Metropolitan District—Suggest Ordinance Drawn By Outside Expert In Cooperation With Local Men.

Members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs met in joint session at the Y. M. C. A. Wednesday at noon for their mid-week dinner and at the conclusion of the meal listened to a very interesting talk on "City Planning and Promotion Work" given by Flavel Shurtleff of the Russell Sage Foundation and secretary of the National Conference of City Planning and field secretary of the committee on city planning for New York city and vicinity.

The meeting was largely attended by members of both the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and the service rendered by the ladies of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary was prompt and the food well cooked. Mr. Shurtleff pointed out in his talk the necessity of city planning and zoning if the community would reap the harvest of benefits which are daily ripening. By city planning it is possible to make of any city a much better and more contented and prosperous community. But in this work the utmost intelligence must be exercised and it would be necessary to have the support of the people of the city. "Not spasmodic support but day in and day out support if a city was to grow and prosper."

The New York district which includes northern Jersey on the south, along the Sound to the east and up as far as Newburgh on the north is now under observation of Mr. Shurtleff and the regional survey which is being made of this district shows many things which should be of interest to people in the outlying districts. These things were pointed out by the speaker and from them local people may draw their own conclusions as to whether Kingston and vicinity might not benefit from the facts as shown.

In certain portions of the New York region the population is very dense, in other parts the population is very thinly distributed. However, with the limit of population almost here for this district the question which arises now is what to do with the double population which is bound to confront this district within a very short space of time. At present the railroads and terminals and other points of entrance to New York city and especially Manhattan Island are choked. Within a short time there must be an expansion and when this time comes it will be the outlying districts which must reap the benefits.

In Kingston the speaker said there were excellent prospects. Waterways were at the door, shipping facilities were ideal. With the proper spirit of cooperation and the right kind of direction by competent people Kingston's natural advantages might be made to produce in a big way.

A city might be compared with an individual and Mr. Shurtleff illustrated this statement by comparing a city ruined and practically at a standstill through neglect. A splendid body could be ruined through disease and neglect. Kingston with excellent waterways and other advantages could easily overcome any natural disadvantages or handicaps if the people of the town would get together and work for the future.

Towns on the prairie with no advantages were made to grow and prosper and came to the centers of activity and influence only by the work of the people in the town. In all towns there was the intelligence to put across a big plan if only the intelligence could be harnessed and directed in the proper direction. He cited a Jersey town which during the last season the water supply ran short. The private water company, which had a chance to link itself with several other towns in securing an almost limitless supply of pure water but had failed to take advantage of it. The reason was he said that the town was dominated by two men and progress was arrested. The spasmodic flare of enthusiasm he condemned as a failure. Cities of ten experienced a spasm of enthusiasm. With a big hurrah the boom was started and then it failed. There had been a lack of organization and team work. Had the steady every day pushing kind of spirit been applied to the town instead of the spasmodic booster type the town would have forged ahead and accomplished its objective.

Even a well directed Chamber of Commerce is not enough in a town. It helps but it needs help. A committee made up of citizens of the city on the job all the time is needed in any city but such a committee needs the help of all of the citizens all of the time if it would obtain great results of the town.

The Hudson river district could

Cat in a Tree, Call Firemen

A call was sent to Wiltwyck Hose Company about 11:30 o'clock this morning to secure a cat in a tree in front of No. 106 Albany avenue, the cat evidently being afraid to come down.

The firemen answered the call and the cat was soon in a condition in which it can climb trees again. During the year 1923 the fire department was summoned to rescue one cat from a telephone pole and also one cat on a roof.

be divided up in three districts. The New York district which should embrace that territory about New York and in northern Jersey ending at Bear Mountain or thereabouts. The Central Hudson district could include the territory in the central Hudson district which would include Kingston and towns up the river to Troy. Then the third district should be the Albany district. Each district would have a distinct proposition to take care of. The advantages of the district and the advantages should be studied to determine just what the district was best adapted for. Then when this was determined the particular function of the cities therein should be studied, whether they should be a manufacturing town, a selling town or some other business. When it was determined the city should divert its attention to its own particular business and take advantage of conditions.

In the New York district conditions have reached a point where industries are crowded. Values have risen to such a point that many are seeking cheaper locations. Many are leaving New York and vicinity for cheaper locations.

Is Kingston in a position to take advantage of this drift of industries from the congested districts to the cheaper districts? The housing proposition, the speaker said, was one of the controlling factors. The housing of employees is one of the big problems.

The time is not far distant when workers will demand better living accommodations and this condition will react upon the employee who will be compelled to seek other locations. When this time comes will Kingston be able to take advantage of the condition?

Zoning is being put into effect in many of the leading cities of the country. If Kingston doesn't zone it will not be in the procession, said Mr. Shurtleff. Zoning means a saving to the people of any community. Where zoning is put in effect a public garage might come and locate next to a residential section and the value of the residential section thereby be depreciated in value. This condition has caused great loss of money in many places and unless a good, sound zoning ordinance is in effect there is nothing to prevent this happening in our own city.

The speaker pointed out the advantages of zoning and advised the people to look into local conditions before they drew up a zoning ordinance. A local committee, which knows local conditions better than any outsider, could draw up a zoning ordinance, but before the ordinance was adopted he advised some expert on zoning be called in and his experience be combined with local knowledge so that in future a zoning ordinance which would stand the test of the courts would be the result. In many cities an ordinance has been put into effect by local people and when the test came it was found it would not "hold water" in the courts. This condition, he pointed out, should be avoided in Kingston if possible.

"Within limits you can make Mr. Shurtleff. What the people of the town want can be secured if the spirit of cooperation and intelligence are extended. The question is not do we get for our money and what does this city and other cities get for the same money? That is one of the governing conditions of any town."

Russian Songs Are Enjoyed

As Sung by Edward Bromberg at Library Benefit Concert and Miss David's Performance on Harp Captivates Audience.

There was an excellent attendance at the High School on Wednesday evening to hear Annie Louise David, harpist, and Edward Bromberg, Russian baritone, give the concert which was one number of the series of three lectures and entertainments being given by The Federation of Women's Clubs for the benefit of the Kingston City Library. W. Whiting Frodenburgh of this city acted as piano accompanist for Mr. Bromberg, who gave an interesting short sketch of Russian music which in general or in the folk songs in particular is so irresistibly appealing. Among the Russian masters of music, Mr. Bromberg mentioned Tschaiowsky, Rubinstein, Rachmaninoff and others. His explanation of the yearning, and melancholy character of the folk songs of Russia, was that the Russian peasants have, under one form of government or the other been so long oppressed and treated with cruelty and injustice that even their brightest music—and many of their folk songs are bright—are written in the minor key. As the peasants always sing, no matter what they do, Russia is particularly rich in folk songs, and those of Ukraine, the Italy of Russia, were said to be the most festive.

Mr. Bromberg, who possesses a pleasing baritone voice and much temperance sang all of the Russian songs in his native language, opening the program, accompanied by Mr. Frodenburgh, with the following group of Russian folk songs: "Enslave me Not, Dearst," "Harvest Song," "Cossack Lullaby," "Mamma, Let me Meet my Sweetheart." Mr. Bromberg graciously sang an encore number.

Miss David is so charming in her personality and presents such a fascinating picture as she plays her beautiful harp in addition to her masterly handling of her chosen instrument that she always receives an ovation, as she did Wednesday evening. Following along the line of Mr. Bromberg's songs Miss David played first, a Russian Prelude, "Salutation to the Dawn," by Loukine, and then the slow movement and the introduction and cadenza from "The First Concerto," by Hoberg, the only American concerto for the harp, written especially for Miss David. Every harp number played by Miss David was a musical classic.

A particularly pleasing group of songs were "The Volga Boatman's Song" (folk song); "Torment Me Not," by Davidoff; "New National Hymn of Russia," by Gretchaninoff, in which Mr. Bromberg was accompanied by Miss David. Mr. Bromberg's last group of songs were English songs: "When Song is Sweet," by Souci; "Coming Home," by Wilby; and "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," by O'Hara, and in response to the hearty applause he repeated "Coming Home."

Miss David gave two Debussy numbers, "Dr. Gradus ad Parnassum from 'Children's Corner,'" and "Clair de Lune," which was her own arrangement of the composition. A quaint little number was "Le Bon Petit Roi d'Yvetot," by Granadyan while "Au Matin" by Tournier was one of the loveliest numbers that she played.

The program closed with a group of "request numbers," Brahms' beautiful "Valse," the dainty, brilliant "Fireflies," by Hasselesmus; and two oriental numbers, "Arabian Serenade in the Desert" and "Chinese Dance," both of which were indeed charming.

Whiting-Williams will give the last lecture of the course under the auspices of the Kingston Federation of Women's Clubs, for the benefit of the Kingston City Library, on Wednesday evening, March 26, and his subject will be "Mainstays" of Men: What my Pick Turned Up about People."

Examines Tebow.

General Manager Tebow was cross examined at the hearing by Mr. Van Etten, and in reply to questions stated that all repair work on the trolley road was performed by outside parties and that no contractor in Kingston was employed to make repairs to the tracks.

"Why?" asked Mr. Van Etten. "It is more economical," explained Mr. Tebow.

"What?" To bring men here from Springfield?" asked Mr. Van Etten.

"Yes," replied Mr. Tebow. He explained further that the trolley road by sending to Springfield obtained a full gang of men with foremen and that these men were doing that sort of work all the year round. "They come to Kingston in the spring and get the work cleaned up before the summer traffic starts."

Trolley Cars For $750. In reply to Mr. Van Etten's questions Mr. Tebow explained that the trolley road bought its cars from the Worcester Street Railway Company because it got the best bargains. "I pay $750 a car and that's a fair price. We got two cars this year and by the time we got them overhauled and ready for use here they cost us about $1,500 each. At the

RUSSIAN CROWN GEMS NOW IN U. S.

Emeralds Owned by Czar Put on Sale in New York.

A magnificent consignment of emeralds, identified here as from the crown of the czarina of Russia, has just been cleared through the office of F. J. H. Kracke, appraiser of the port of New York. By coincidence, the identity of the jewels was confirmed by Prince Yousouppoff, who was at the time endeavoring to clear through the customs the $1,000,000 worth of Russian jewels he had brought to this country when he arrived on the Berengaria.

Royal Regalia intact.

Pending further investigation the name of the person to whom these jewels are consigned cannot be divulged. If the jewels are authentic, as Prince Yousouppoff asserted them to be, their arrival may indicate the dispatch of funds to this country by the Russian Soviet government.

Despite numerous allegations that Russian "crown" jewels had been smuggled out of Russia and were for sale in various parts of the world, it has been definitely established that almost the entire royal regalia of the old regime is in the custody of the Soviet in a strong room in the Kremlin in Moscow. Experts employed by that government have carefully examined all of the items of the regalia and have compared their list with the pre-revolutionary inventories of the jewels. They found that the more important pieces are practically intact. The crown of the czarina, particularly the crown containing great emeralds, is considered certain to have been on this list.

Haskell Saw Jewels in Russia.

One of the most authentic witnesses to the existence of the jewels in the Soviet's hands is Col. William H. Haskell, head of the Hoover relief expedition in Russia. He saw the jewels himself and has told of their completeness.

The Soviet government has always insisted that these jewels were its legitimate property and it was said to have been the plan of Lenin never to let them fall into the hands of smugglers or any sort of devious trade. When it was safe to sell them publicly in any part of the world without risking claims against them by members of the royal family or hostile governments, it had been Lenin's plan to realize on them at public sale more handsomely than he could have surreptitiously.

In addition to the jewels of the regalia the Soviet of course also had undoubtedly millions in jewels belonging personally to the scores of members of the royal family and to wealthy bourgeois and nobles arrested, tortured or killed at the time of the revolution. Many of these have undoubtedly been exported. Their proceeds have been used on Russian propaganda abroad and also to pay the expenses of legitimate representatives abroad. The trip of M. Tchitcherine to Genoa, of Rakovsky to The Hague and of the trade delegation to London were each preceded by important sales through legitimate channels of diamonds, pearls, emeralds, rubies and platinum, not to mention gold plate.

Pays $12,000 on Pearls.

A careful examination of all of the Yousouppoff jewelry is being conducted by experts brought in from the jewelry trade, however, and the price only succeeded in releasing 42 black pearls, valued at $60,000, by paying $12,000 duty on them. It was explained that had the pearls been strung in a necklace, to afford some indication of the jewelry handwork, the date the prince ascribed to the jewels might have been determined in a way to confirm his claim that they were free as "antique," or more than 100 years old. Lacking any setting, however, the appraisers could find no way of determining whether the pearls themselves were made by the oysters of this year or those who worked for the queen of Sheba.

Two Survive Long Trip in Leaking Schooner

After being adrift at sea in a disabled schooner four months, during which time four of their companions died of beriberi, Frank Correia and John L. Lazaro arrived at their homes in Providence, R. I., from Clarra, Brazil, where the three-masted schooner William H. Draper, which sailed from Providence December 18, 1922, for the Cape de Verde Islands, lies a wreck.

There were nine passengers and nine sailors aboard the schooner when it left in command of Capt. Miguel Montano. A few days after leaving port the vessel ran into a succession of gales, which blew its sails and rigging away and drove it far outside the lanes of marine commerce and south of the equator. Owing to the heat the water supply went bad and it was then the beriberi made its appearance and four members of the crew died. The vessel finally drifted off the Brazilian coast and was towed into Clarra, leaking badly. Correia and Lazaro waited several months before the American consul could arrange their passage home.

STORM-BOUND MEN FIND NEW WAY TO USE RADIO

"Wire" Wireless May Revolutionize the Methods of Communication.

A half dozen hydro-electric engineers, snowed in by blizzards and completely cut off from communication with the outside world in a mountain camp 280 miles north of Vancouver, Cal., today are attesting the verity of the old adage that "necessity is the mother of invention," asserts the Washington Star.

Hemmed in by huge drifts from snows and when the only telephone line to the camp went out of commission, the party summoned both food and help by evolving a new method of "directed" radio transmission. Not only did they save themselves, but their experiments may go a long way toward revolutionizing present land use of wireless.

The results of their efforts to obtain success in a new "wired wireless" method by which radio messages can be confined to one direction and sent without conflict with any other radio sending or receiving station in the use of the air.

The discovery was made when the engineers, who are employed in hydro-electric development work by the Pacific Gas and Electric company, tuned a small radio set which they carried in the direction of high voltage transmission lines which run past their camps. The sound waves precipitated against the power wires were carried to the terminus of the lines here, a distance of 200 miles, where they were picked off by a small boy with an amateur receiving set.

Shortly after the first message was received, power company employees, using another powerful radio operator and his amateur sending set, were in full communication with the snow-bound engineers.

The value of the chance discovery, precipitated by necessity, according to radio experts, lies in the possibility of all kinds of land lines in the same kind of "direct" sending. Not only can high tension lines be pressed into such service, they assert, but telephone and telegraph lines, and even barbed wire fences can be utilized in the same way without interfering in any manner with their other uses.

The same "wired wireless" system, they declare, can be used to send messages when static conditions prevent use of regular radio methods.

Find Fossilized Oyster of the Pre-Glacial Ages

A fossilized oyster, believed by scientists to be a relic of the pre-glacial ages, has been unearthed by A. G. Shearer, plotting the top of a hill at Pope, Manitoba. Dr. R. C. Wallace, professor of geology at the University of Manitoba, stated that, in all probability, Shearer struck a rock, carried by the ice of the glacial age and belonging to a period millions of years earlier than the ice age, as there is now neither river nor lake near Pope.

THE CONSUMER PAYS.

The perversity of the Kingston Consolidated Railway management in refusing to consider the offer of the Public Service Commission to supply a competent man to advise regarding a readjustment of its lines is equalled by the perversity of the mayor and aldermen in insisting that not a foot of track be abandoned. The attitude of the trolley company, short-sighted as it is, is easier to understand than that of public officials who insist on a program that is sure to make travel on the trolley cars more costly.

The Public Service Commission is powerless to compel the trolley company to consent to a sensible change in its tracks that would avoid the existing costly duplication and can only hold down the increase in fare to such sum as promises reasonable profit on a wastefully laid out track system. The city officials seem content in making protests that they know are vain and joining the trolley company in opposing the only thing that would be of real service to those who use the trolley cars as a means of travel and which would also be a benefit to the trolley company.

It is not strange that Commissioner Parsons expressed himself in somewhat heated terms at the hearing in Albany on Wednesday. The thousands who ride in the cars must pay for the perversity of the few who are too obstinate to admit that the world moves and that the operating of all the tracks originally built for competing lines is not sound business.

LLOYD GEORGE IN A HOLE.

That Lloyd George "disclosure" sensation ended precisely as every intelligent and unprejudiced observer expected. The body of the late Woodrow Wilson was not yet in its grave when Lloyd George declared, or was said to declare, that the former president of the United States entered at Paris into a secret agreement with Clemenceau for the occupation of the Rhineland, notwithstanding his (Lloyd George's) opposition. Immediately Andre Tardieu, close associate of Clemenceau, announced that there was no atom of truth in such a statement. Then Clemenceau himself spoke in no uncertain terms, practically giving the lie to Lloyd George and adding that: "If Mr. Wilson were still living, his denial would be added to that which I recollect being obliged to inflict upon the former British prime minister." The "Tiger" further announced: "If Lloyd George will produce a secret agreement between Wilson and me, I will pay the reparations."

Facing this challenge from France as well as unsparring criticism in his own country, including the repudiation of his utterance by Premier Ramsay MacDonald, there was nothing left for the Welsh fox to do but disclaim the interview, which he promptly did, declaring that "Mr. Spender cabled to America a confused impression of a private conversation," and Harold Spender himself submissively announced that "if there is any carelessness in the matter it is mine." As usual in such cases the blame is put upon the journalist, and possibly Spender did surprise Lloyd George by his choice of a time to cable the alleged "news." He knows now, as does Lloyd George, that such a story at such a time, apart from its untruth, was an exhibition of shockingly bad taste.

RABBIT ERMINE.

It has been testified in a Leipzig court that costly ermine, the fur so long associated with royal state, is nothing but the warm coat provided by nature for the humble rabbit, when it is not that of the squirrel, artfully "doctored" in both cases. It seems that in the Leipzig case a purchaser of alleged ermine, brought suit to get his money back on the ground that he had been deceived, claiming discovery that the white fur with black spots at regular intervals was taken rabbit fur. The defense then frankly stated that rabbit and squirrel ermine was all there is on the market and that therefore the purchaser had no grievance.

If this defense should be sustained, one more cherished illusion will go the way of numerous others. Have kinks been proudly masquerading in common rabbit and squirrel skins all these years? If so, the ermine was "stained" with fraud even while monarchs proudly and nobly asserted their determination never to disgrace this badge of royalty by an unworthy deed. Of course real ermine is not, or was not, mere myth. "The Putorius ermine," we read, "does or did exist, and is, or was, a pure white relative of the weasel, with a black tip to his tail, and it was he in the good old days, however it may be at present, that supplied the fur that gave a finishing touch to the decoration of kings and some judges."

It may well be believed that this rabbit and squirrel ermine is not the only fraudulent fur on the market. Even some of the more costly varieties, very soft to the touch, have a decidedly "doctored" appearance.

A FURTHER WORD ABOUT BUNIONS.

In a former article I talked about bunions. That they were really an inflammation of a bag of water, at the junction of the end of the big toe bone with the corresponding bone on the inner side of sole of the foot.

I saw a great many misshapen feet during the examination of recruits, and wherever I saw bunions I asked the chap if he had worn narrow shoes. His reply was "Well you see my foot was a bit wide naturally and I thought a narrow shoe would sort of shape it up better and make it narrow."

It is hard to credit this, but it just showed the lack of thought. Now what actually happens when you wear a narrow pointed shoe?

Why the outer ends of the toes are drawn inward, and the lower ends which meet the sole are thrown outward, and so right across the ball, the foot is actually wider than before.

For instance, just take off your shoe and with your hand draw all your toes together to a central point. What happens?

The lower end of your big toe bone sticks out very prominently, and it is just over this point where it meets the inner bone of sole of the foot, that as I said above, the bag is located.

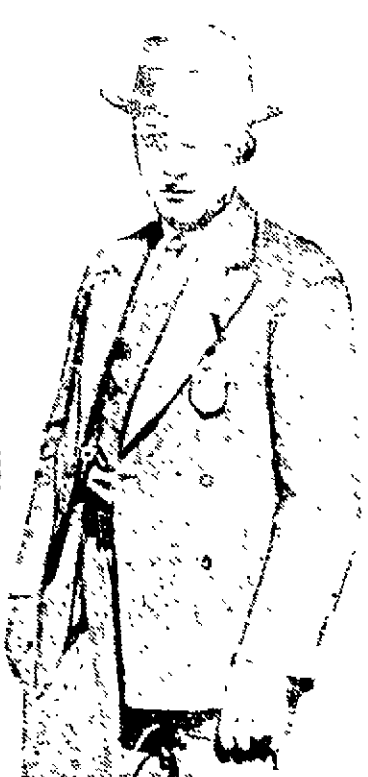

Your tight shoe, you see, thus presses on this bag, and starts that painful thing we call a bunion. Fortunately the dressy shoe of today is of good width, with a well rounded toe. This means foot comfort and freedom from bunions.

Should you have a bunion already developed, bath it well with hot water for ten to fifteen minutes two or three times a day.

Then wear a loose shoe and nine times out of ten the biggest part of the swelling will disappear. Narrow shoes will start all your trouble over again.

Your feet are worth a lot to you, so take care of them.

HOW

FACTORIES MAKE PAPER STRAWS BY THE MILLION

In the manufacture of what are now popularly called "paper straws" there are some interesting features. The paper of which they are made is cut into strips in the factory, about 2,000 sheets being cut at a time, each sheet of the knife making that many strips. The paper is rolled by a long steel spindle operated by machinery. In less time than it is required to tell it, the strip of paper is rolled into a tube and held in that shape by a bit of paste, which was applied to the free end before the winding began.

The next operation is to coat the straws with paraffin, which is accomplished in a tank half full of melted paraffin. Through this tank passes a vertical shaft and it is furnished with platforms in which wire baskets are placed. Hundreds of the paper tubes are piled into the baskets, which are dropped into the hot paraffin for a moment and then hoisted into the upper part of the tank. By this time the outside of the tubes are coated and the insides filled with the paraffin.

Then, to remove the paraffin contained in the tubes, the baskets are whirled around in the upper tank until the unnecessary paraffin is thrown off and the coating dried. Before this coating the straws are easily crushed, but when they have been dipped into the paraffin and turned out upon the table, where they are cooled and dried, they become tough and are easily handled.

The next step in the process is to cut the newly manufactured paper straws into proper lengths so that they may be packed for shipping. Six rubber bands are placed around a bunch of the long straws at such places that when the bundle is sawed into three sections, each short bundle will show a band at each end. The saw used for the cutting is thin and its teeth are quite thin. About 600,000 straws a day are turned out by the factory, but in the busy season this number is sometimes increased to 1,000,000.

Hunter Tells How Lion Brings Down Buffalo

Denis D. Lyell in his "Memories of an African Hunter," gives an interesting account of how a lion seized his prey. If his quarry is a herd of buffaloes, "he squats and waits behind a bush or in the grass. When an animal gets near enough he makes a sudden rush, which may start off his victim. Owing to his great muscular development, the lion accelerates quickly and is soon up to the buffalo, when he rears upon his hind legs and seizes his prey by the nape of the neck, fairly far back, using (if on the left side) his left paw to drag the buffalo's face toward him.

"If the buffalo is still moving the lion still keeps his hind paws on the ground, advancing with the buffalo by hops, so to speak. The weight of the lion and the tearing of the face backward makes the buffalo stumble, with the result that he often, although not always breaks his neck. If not, the lion, having him down, breaks it with his teeth."—Detroit News.

How to Be Book Collector

The book collector must, in the first place, cultivate his literary taste, says Arthur Machen. He must altogether shut his ears to the babblers and their talk.

He must keep his eyes upon the book lists of publishers, marking down the authors who appeal to him, looking always for that glow of beauty which enchanted Rossetti as he stood outside the shop in Castle street. Then he must become a devout student of the second-hand catalogues.

He has his list of the men whom he is following. He notes when a book published at $1.75 a year ago is priced at $2.50. In another year's time that title will have risen to $5, and so on.

The collector who buys on these principles will never find that his fairy gold has turned to dead leaves. He has mastered the true craft of the collector.—McNaught's Monthly.

How to Make Marble

A process for making imitations of statuary marble, onyx and other multi-colored stones, has been devised in France. About 1,000 parts of alum, from 10 to 100 parts of heavy spar (barium sulphate) and 100 parts of water are mixed with the requisite pigments, and the liquid mass is boiled down and cast in a mold. The amount of heavy spar used varies with the degree of translucence desired. After being molded and dried, the artificial stone thus produced can be polished and finished as desired.

How to Make Hole in Glass

It is said that a hole may be made in thin glass by pressing upon the glass a disk of wet clay. Make a hole through this clay the size of the hole desired in the glass, being sure that the glass is clean and bare. Now pour molten lead into the hole and the lead and glass will drop through at once. The quick heating of the glass at one point causes a circular crack to form, the outline of which corresponds to the hole made in the clay.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is had you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help cleanse and stimulate sluggish kidneys also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of soft water. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

OIL PAINTINGS COMPLETE ARE MARLBOROUGH PRODUCTS.

Eckerson's Pictures to Hang in Public Library.

Marlborough, Feb. 14.—Four original oil paintings by Cornelius Eckerson, local artist, which are to grace the local public library, have been placed on public exhibition at the library and are viewed by hundreds of people.

The four paintings, which were but recently completed, represent the four seasons, spring, summer, autumn and winter and are of an allegorical character. They are approximately four feet by three feet in size and are hung in frames which are also the handiwork of Mr. Eckerson who, in addition to being a painter, is an expert in wood carving.

Each of the paintings depicts three young women dressed in appropriate costumes bearing a tray containing typical seasonal products. The young women who posed for the paintings are all local residents.

In the first of the four panels, which represents spring, the three young women bear a tray filled with spring flowers. The young women posing for the paintings were Miss Grace Lockwood, as March; Miss Evelyn Tullish as April, and Miss Alice DuBois as May.

The tray borne by the three figures in the panel representing summer is filled with grain, berries and the small fruits of the season. The young women representing the three months in this picture are Miss Helen Staples as June; Miss Louise del Vecchio as July; Miss Helen Carpenter as August.

uary and Miss Sarah Clark Mackey as February bear a tray filled with oranges and other winter fruits in the panel depicting winter.

BOY SCOUTS

Directed by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

SCOUT CAPTURES BANDITS

That boy scouts are practical men for community law and order is shown in the recent vigorous good deed of Scout John Watkins of Philadelphia who, after an exciting chase on foot, trolley car and automobile, nabbed three burglars and caused the arrest of two of them.

Scout Watkins first learned of the bandits' activities when Morris Cohen, proprietor of a drug store which the bandits were passing, rushed from his store, shouting he had been robbed, to a Philadelphia Journal.

The men had entered the store and taken $50 from the proprietor's cash register and a gold watch and chain. They then forced the druggist to the rear of the store, on the run. The scout noticed them first as they entered the store, and a few moments later Cohen emerged and described the bandits who had occurred, the boy started in pursuit.

Once he nearly caught up to the bandits, but helpless to do anything else, he kept them in sight all the while. He saw a policeman. At that point in the chase Watkins jumped on the rear of a passing automobile. Sighting the men boarding the auto, the boy jumped from the auto and hung on back of the car until he saw two policemen, to whom he called. They boarded the car and Watkins identified two of the burglars. The third could not be found. On the floor of the car, near where the men had been seated, the police found money and two pistols. The burglars were taken to the police station.

Scout Watkins recently saved the lives of three small children when a team of horses attached to the wagon which the children were riding, became frightened and ran away. Watkins leaped on back of the wagon and, grabbing the reins, brought the animals to a stop.

A SCOUT'S POINT OF VIEW

The scout movement carries a boy to nature and teaches him not only how to take care of himself in all conditions of the open, but also to observe and appreciate the out-of-doors.

HOME OF BOY SCOUT HEROES

Cosmopolis, Wash., has good claim to the name—"Home of Boy Scout Heroes." Within a period of four or two hours recently made heroic deeds in the Chohalla river and saved Scout Burton Keegan, thirteen years of age, is one of the life savers. According to the story of three witnesses, Keegan swam half-way across the river and rescued a ten-year-old crippled lad who had become weakened in an attempt to swim the river. Keegan was standing on the dock when the younger boy, who had just reached midstream, suddenly felt his strength leaving him and called for help. The scout immediately jumped into the river and reached the lad as he was sinking. Keegan started to swim toward shore with the boy. He became exhausted before he reached the end of his long journey and several other boys helped him. The crippled lad was in a semi-conscious condition when he was placed on the bank of the river, but first aid administered by his scout rescuer revived him and he was taken to his home. The second hero, Scout Mills, also rescued a drowning person. A Ruffelson, from the Chohalla when he later fell off the Cosmopolis city dock.

BOY SCOUTS AID COMMUNITY

A valuable community good turn was recently performed by six troops of Scouts, Utah, in fighting a large forest fire. Advancing in a canyon some miles from the city. Within one hour after a distress call had reached scout headquarters, the boys were on their feet, armed with shovels and axes. At 8:30 p. m. the scouts reached the fire area, and by 10 p. m., after heroic work, they had the flames under control. The boys then stood guard to prevent any stray sparks.

RECAPITULATION OF BALANCES IN HIGHWAY FUND.

Highway account.....$ 3,861 07

Machinery account.....126 13

Miscellaneous account.....373 32

Bridge fund deficit.....2,540 78

Total balance.....$ 1,819 74

While it appears from the foregoing figures that there is a deficit in the bridge account of the highway fund, this is not entirely correct, for the reason that the bonds which were issued for the rebuilding of the Phoenixia Bridge have not yet been sold, but under the terms of the contract, the contractors became entitled to a payment of $2,969.53, which has been paid to them.

In the construction of the Cold Brook bridge which is a joint bridge between Shandaken and Olive, the town also did certain work for which the Town of Olive is liable amounting to the sum of $722.81, only $100 of which has been paid, by reason of this town receiving the sale price of the bridge amounting to $200 from the Town of Denning, and there is therefore due from the Town of Olive $622.81, which will be paid shortly after the first of the year. Likewise will the bonds for the Phoenixia bridge be sold on the 31st day of this month, which will reimburse the fund for the amounts previously paid; therefore while it appears at the present time there is a deficit of $2,540.78 in the highway fund yet actually when that fund has been reimbursed to the amount of payments hereinbefore referred to, there will be actually a balance available for use next year of $1,041.26.

Hereto annexed is a certificate of the Kingston Trust Company, in which all the town funds are deposited, certifying to the balance in the several funds at 12:00 o'clock noon on December 24, 1923.

You will note that the general fund and highway fund and poor fund show balances in excess of the balances referred to as being on hand in this report. This is due to the fact that there are certain checks drawn on the bank on these accounts outstanding and not yet presented for payment.

Hereto annexed and marked Exhibit "A" is a list of the checks drawn on the general fund which are outstanding and unpaid.

New Safe Way to Whiten Teeth Instantly!

Marvelous Discovery Bleaches Dark Teeth White

A few harmless treatment has been discovered which dissolves tooth stains in minutes, leaving dull teeth shining white. This new tooth whitening is called the Bleachodont Combination. It consists of a marvelous liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid instantly dissolves or softens the stains while the paste removes them and prevents the formation of future stains. You just brush your teeth with a few drops of the liquid, then use the paste, and before you are aware your teeth acquire a clear, shining whiteness, even in hours, soiling by old-fashioned methods could not give them.

Safe Method

Bleachodont Combination is safe to use. Its mild ingredients are intended to get rid of surface stains, not on the enamel itself. Tooth stains as all dentists know are caused by a substance called "tannin" which collects on teeth where it enters staining substances and hardens. Formerly this hard coating could not be removed without often grinding away part of the enamel. But now thanks to Bleachodont Combination these stains can be dissolved away without affecting the enamel in any way.

No More Tobacco Stained Teeth

Surely nothing could so effectively get rid of yellowish tobacco stains as this new Bleachodont Combination.

Goldfish Farming Is Maryland Industry

Goldfish farming is a little known but important industry in Maryland. In Washington there, in a beautiful valley that is watered by numerous small creeks some 35 farmers produce all the goldfish each year in the United States.

There is something in the water, and the climate of their valley, that causes goldfish to color better than in any other place in the country, says a Detroit News. Just what this is, scientists have not yet determined, but it exists is evidenced by the growth of the industry there within a matter of a century, and the ready market which Frederick county goldfish always find.

Goldfish farming involves soil cultivation, just as does the raising of any agricultural crop. Usually the producers fertilize and plow their goldfish ponds in the late fall and sow grass or rye to provide fish pasturing the following season, while some farmers "rest" their ponds every other year by not flooding them, thus allowing the natural grasses and other vegetation of the region to re-establish themselves.

A quarter of a century ago there was not a goldfish in Frederick county, but today there are only one or two other sections of the country where these unique farms are to be found. Ohio and Iowa have one farm each, it is said, while Indiana has two or three, in the vicinity of Grassy Forks.

As the outcome of a movement started by lay members of the Protestant Episcopal Church, charges of extreme heresy have been made against the Rt. Rev. ## Mexico Now Supplying States With Much Food Mexico is becoming one of America's greatest sources of staple foods. Coffee, cotton, rice, sugar, tobacco, wheat and "garbanzos" are grown on the west coast, also the tomato, which was introduced into that territory by American colonists fifteen years ago and the output of which is exported almost exclusively to the United States. Railroad officials and planters estimate the exportation of tomatoes to the United States at 2,000 carloads for the year. This industry is centralized in two main districts of the state of Sinaloa, the Puente River Valley in the north and in several valleys of the south.

Sixty-five cars of cantaloupes crossed the border in the season 1921-22. Grapefruit does well in the Hermosillo and Yaqui valley districts of Sonora, where conditions are much like those of California, and dates and figs are produced on the gulf side of Lower California. Grapes, bananas and alligator pears are grown in quantities. The alligator pear is reported to be the chief article of diet of the common people.

Going Rather Fast

The case before the court in a little town in Wales was one of exceeding the speed limit. The policeman who had brought the charge against the motorist went into the witness box to give evidence.

"You are the constable concerned in this case?" asked the presiding magistrate.

"Yes, sir, indeed," replied the strong arm of the law.

"And can you tell the court at what speed the defendant was traveling?" was the next question from the bench.

The constable scratched his head before replying slowly:

"Well, indeed, sir, I don't know. He was going so fast I did not see him until he was out of sight."—London Answers.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE ENGINE

Billie Brownie had been thinking for some time of visiting an engine of a train. He went to the car yards and nobody could see him as he was wearing his magic coat, very much like the one his dear friend Peter Gnome has.

He went up to a big engine which was doing nothing. He looked at it carefully. It was really a beautiful thing with such power and such strength within it and there was its great headlight, which was not lighted as yet.

And there were the two windows where one could see the engine men when it was going. Oh, it was a most interesting, wonderful looking thing and Billie Brownie felt quite a thrill as he stood by it.

Then he stood in front of the engine and said:

"Hello, Engine."

The engine answered in quite a deep voice though it trailed off into something which sounded very much like a shrill, piercing whistle.

"Hello, are you a boy? For I like boys best. Of course I like girls, too."

"When They Wave to Me."

But I must say boys are my favorites.

"Boys have always been such good friends of mine. They have been just as good friends of mine as they could be."

"They will watch me when I am flying past them through the country and they will understand that I cannot wave back when they wave to me but that some of the passengers I am carrying will wave for me."

"It is true little girls wave to me, too, and I do like little girls. But boys are different! Boys always ask for toys to look like me and members of my family and that is such a compliment."

"I just feel more at ease, somehow, with boys, too."

"I'm a boy, a Brownie boy," Billie Brownie said. "I have often thought of the wonderful life you must lead."

"I do," said the Engine. "At present I am having a rest. But before long things will begin again and I'll be starting."

"They will attach the coal car to me and the baggage car and the dining room car and the passenger car or the coaches. Maybe at the end of me there will be an observation car."

"But I'm not a snob. I won't refuse to carry long lines of freight cars. No, I am perfectly willing to carry anything. You know some creatures will only associate with just certain ones."

"I am different. I've traveled about so much that it seems to me so small to be so snobbish. And so I help passenger cars, freight cars, coal cars, all sorts of cars. And I do the best I can with them all."

"But oh, Billie Brownie, just think of the joy it is to be an engine, to spend one's life in traveling. I see new sights—or if the sights are familiar to me they are made so much nicer by never having a chance to see them too often, just often enough."

"Of course you will say the engine is not home-loving and that is true but while it is true to be home-loving for real people, for an engine it is nice to be an adventurer."

"Of course I go where I am directed, but I lead them all. All the cars follow me. I go dashing madly along through the fields and the valleys and the mountains, along lakes and rivers and streams and I see boys and girls, men and women, cows, pigs, sheep and flowers and grain and forests."

"My great headlight warns of my approach, my bell clangs and my whistle shrieks and tells people that I am coming, that the engine is on its way and in a hurry, too."

"When I carry the freight cars I cannot hurry so fast. They pull me back so—not because they can help it but because they're filled with so many things."

"But we get along as best we can."

"I'm glad you came to see me, Billie Brownie. I hope you'll come again. I hate to hurry you away now, but I see that I must be getting started."

"If you get a chance tell the boys and girls that the Engine sends best wishes to them and Billie Brownie—please give just a little extra best wish to the boys!"

And Billie Brownie promised that he would.

DISHES WORTH TRYING

Waffles are usually a great favorite and one can serve them either for breakfast or for a supper dish.

Best Waffles.—Mix one cupful of flour with one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of soda. Separate the whites and yolks of two eggs, beat well, add a cupful of thick sour milk to the yolks and stir in the dry ingredients, fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the egg and then add three tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Bake on a well-greased waffle iron.

Surprise Sausages.—Parboil link sausages, divide in halves and remove the skins. Wrap in seasoned mashed potato, dip in beaten egg, bread crumbs, and fry in fat until crisp and brown. Serve very hot.

Sausages may be baked on top of creamed potatoes, making a nice change from the ordinary method. Serve them from the dish in which they were baked.

To extend the meat when cooking hamburger add a cupful or less of cooked oatmeal with the seasoning of salt and pepper with onion juice; left in a long roll it bakes nicely.

Fruit Sponge Drops.—Bake small sponge cakes in gem tins. When cold cut off the top, carefully remove the center and fill with any canned fruit—peaches are especially good. Serve with a tablespoonful of whipped cream on top. The crumbs from the center may be served with the juice of the fruit, sprinkled with a few nuts and topped with sweetened whipped cream. If cherries or cherry juice are used flavor the cream with almond.

Pork Tenderloin.—Slit the tenderloin through the center, lengthwise, leaving both ends. Fill with oysters, seasoned with butter and pepper and salt. Sew up and bake one-half hour in a moderate oven; or bake in a fireless cooker with two radiators an hour and a half.

PASTEL AND OTHER GREENS FOR WEAR IN THE EVENING.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Green was the password to smart pastures for a comparatively short length of time for daywear, but its end is not in sight for evening. Beginning with the most brilliant jades imaginable, green has run the gamut from all the gray greens which are a cool, neutral background for the woman herself, but is not in its most popular expression, either light or bright. One may, complexion permitting, wear the shades heretofore known as Nile or else wear a much brighter green. This shade may be termed apple green for want of a newer synonym.

Any smart evening party will supply its quota of frocks in this shade and most winter resorts will find bright green crepes breaking the monotony of yellow, which has been acclaimed the color de luxe for sportswear and which is not seen as much in the ball room. There are, however, apricots and melon shades which have a yellowish tinge frequently augmented by embroideries in gold threads and gold beads.

It is the softer pastel tones which find the readiest response just now and functions still present a distinctly light effect in general colorings. Even pastel blues are present in sufficient numbers to warrant mention. Pink still loads with white running a close second.

Wraps for evening wear have also succumbed to this lighter touch. Taffetas, velvets and many brocades are relatively pale in tone, and this brings into greater prominence lighter furs, with white fox and ermine way in the lead. The white fur jacket is the young girl's concession to formality as expressed in wraps, and she does not hesitate to wear it out of hours, as it were.

A number of fur trimmed evening dresses are worn below the Mason and Dixon line. A band of fur over one shoulder, usually to the waistline or around the skirt, is the most popular arrangement, while ermine tassels have many sponsors. (Copyright, 1924, Fairchild.)

Personal Views Not Evidence

present time the trolley road had 41 cars.

"What value do you place on them?" asked Mr. Van Etten.

"What they cost," explained Mr. TeBow. He said further that the trolley road placed a valuation of about $150,000 on the cars now on hand. "That figures out less than $3,000 a car, or about $2,700 each," he said. "You just said that you paid $350 for a car," said Mr. Van Etten.

"Yes," replied Mr. TeBow, "but we have not bought all of them for that price."

In regard to the physical valuation of the trolley system as filed with the public service commission Mr. TeBow stated that the trolley road was asking only for a fair return on the amount, and that it was not based on the capital stock of the company.

In reply to questions as to what the stock was worth he explained with a smile that he himself had bought some stock as low as $5 a share.

Franchise Tax Boosted.

Mr. TeBow explained further that the state franchise tax on the trolley road had been raised about $150,000 in the past three years.

"I would like to know how much was paid for the capital stock," said Mr. Van Etten.

Mr. TeBow replied that he did not know.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Van Etten the general manager stated that as far as he knew the Ley Company, who control the local trolley road, held no interest in any other trolley road. "They are contractors with offices in New York city," he said.

More Money; Less Riders.

"If you raise the rate of fare to ten cents won't there be a decrease in the number of riders on the trolley cars?" asked Judge Jenkins.

"There may be," replied Mr. TeBow.

Judge Jenkins asked Mr. TeBow if it was not true that there was considerable building in progress in Kingston at the present time and that a number of new houses had been erected just off Washington avenue along the Colonial Division, and he replied that was true.

Mr. TeBow contended that the dropping off in the number of passengers carried was largely due to the increase in auto traffic in Kingston. He said that at the present time the trolley road made too many stops and that the other day a woman who resided off Washington avenue had called at his office and asked him if the trolley could not stop near her home instead of a little further on. She said that the walking was very bad but if the trolley would only stop for a month or so until they got their auto out she would be satisfied.

1918 Was a Big Year.

Mr. TeBow said that the largest return the trolley road had gotten was in 1918 when the fare was five cents.

"Don't you think if you return to a five cent fare you would have a larger increase now?" asked Mr. Van Etten.

Mr. TeBow replied that he did not think so and said that the trolley road's operating expenses in 1918 were $109,000 and in 1923 had increased to $171,000.

"Has the Colonial Division ever paid?" asked Mr. Van Etten.

"It never did before it was consolidated with the Kingston City Division," replied Mr. TeBow.

Only One Solution.

Commissioner Parsons here took a hand in the proceedings and said that every one who had looked over the trolley situation in Kingston believed that the only solution of the problem was abandonment of part of the trackage, and he believed himself it was the only solution.

"No do I," agreed Mr. Van Etten.

"Yes," replied Commissioner Parsons, "but here you have a common council who adopt resolutions opposing and abandonment of trackage."

Could Not Use Subway.

"Why could not both roads use the subway under the West Shore tracks?" asked Mr. Van Etten, turning to Mr. TeBow.

"It could not be done and operate on a ten minute schedule," replied Mr. TeBow.

Why Time Is Lost.

"I ride on the trolley cars probably as much as any one," said Mr. Van Etten, "and every day I lose considerable time by the cars being held up by the Broadway crossing."

"We average a loss on the Kingston City Division of 40 to 50 minutes a day," explained Mr. TeBow. He said that was due to the fact that the West Shore railroad used the crossing as a switching point to make up freights and other trains.

City's Population 29,700.

Judge Jenkins then took up the question of abandonment of the trolley road and asked if the city's population had not increased and that the city was growing. "We now have a population, according to figures compiled by outside sources of 29,700. Is not that so?" he thought it was higher than that," replied Mr. TeBow. "I thought it was over 30,000."

Personal Views Not Evidence.

After some further questioning of Mr. TeBow, Commissioner Parsons interrupted to remark "What Judge Jenkins and Mr. Van Etten's views are is not evidence. We have to decide the case on evidence presented here. I have tried to get you folks to get around a table in Kingston and try to reach some agreement, but you have not been able to do so, evidently."

Mr. Chipp, attorney for the trolley road, who had been following the cross-examining of Mr. TeBow closely, said that if there were no further questions to be asked of him, that the trolley road rested its case.

Judge Jenkins Spoke.

Judge Jenkins said that because the road is a misfit road with no reason why the city of Kingston should suffer. The Colonial was built as a spite road in the first place, and if the trolley company could not make it pay they should suspend and bus lines should be operated.

Mr. Van Etten said that an increase in fare would work a considerable hardship on everyone who had signed the petition he had filed with the commission.

"One of those lines ought to be abandoned," said Commissioner Parsons. "I suggested it at the first hearing. The anti-traffic of the city of Kingston, however, insist on all trackage being used."

What Attitude Would Be.

Attorney Merritt, of the Taxpayers' Association, suggested that the matter be held open to give the city authorities and the trolley road a chance to get together again.

Mr. Chipp said that the hearings had been dragged on long enough, and that nothing would be gained by a further delay.

"It is evident from the resolution of your common council what the attitude would be," said Commissioner Parsons.

Merritt Explains Position.

Attorney Merritt said that he would like to have it placed in the record that he was opposed to the raising of rates. He said that he had devoted considerable effort to have the matter adjusted at home. Following out the suggestion of Commissioner Parsons made at the previous hearing he had telephoned the commission the following day from Kingston and the next day they had sent an expert to Kingston who had spent some time here going thoroughly over the situation.

The expert and he had then met with General Manager TeBow and threw the matter out and at that time had reached an agreement that was satisfactory.

The same evening Mr. Merritt said he had met with the city authorities and laid the proposition before them but they had rejected it. For that reason he did not feel it fair to state what the proposition was or what state of fare had been agreed upon.

Parsons Presses His Mind.

"There is nothing for the commission to do," said Commissioner Parsons at that point. "But to raise rates on the evidence that has been submitted. As to how much, that is a different question, to be settled later. As long as the city authorities of Kingston take the position of a dog in the manger and insist that cars continue to run by their homes they will have to take their medicine."

Jenkins Explains Position.

Judge Jenkins said that there were two roads which were competing before they were consolidated and they are still competing with each other, and that it was not fair to the citizens of Kingston to expect them to pay an increased fare from that fact.

"But your city authorities refuse to listen to any abandonment of trackage," interrupted Commissioner Parsons.

"If the trolley road comes here with a reasonable proposition to eliminate that part of the road that parallels they will receive favorable attention from the city," said Judge Jenkins.

"This question of abandonment of trackage is not before the commission," said Mr. Chipp.

Seek Return of 8 Per Cent.

"I think if the trolley road is now making 4 per cent on its investment that that amount is sufficient," suggested Mr. Van Etten.

Mr. TeBow brought out the fact that the trolley road believed it was entitled to a return of 8 per cent.

Commissioner Parsons said that if the commission agreed that a return of 4 per cent was enough that the trolley road would only go to the courts and the public service commission would be reversed.

"That is just what we would do," explained Mr. Chipp with a smile. He added that he did not intend that as a threat.

"No Evidence," Said Parsons.

Commissioner Parsons said that there was no evidence before the commission except that showing that the trolley road is operating at a loss.

As there was nothing further to offer, Commissioner Parsons said he would declare the hearing closed, but if there was any desire to reopen the case, it could be done by making an application to the commission.

Commissioner Parsons said that he would allow a week to file any memorandum desired. He said that he would be away for the rest of the week, and that no decision would be handed down in the matter until later.

Will Get Increase.

Judging from the statements made by Commissioner Parsons at the hearing it is only a question as to how much of a raise in fare will be granted the trolley road, but it is evident that it will not be as high as ten cents.

WHY SHE LIVES IN ARIZONA

A few weeks ago the story of Leora Lobban Brewer was typed for the editor. It told of a cheery woman who wrote in matches, between rounds of the "Brewer Furniture" business, and nursing her husband through an illness. "The business is transacted in Tucson, Ariz.," it said lightly. "Now the United States census places Tucson in the 'Cities and Towns Having From 10,000 to 25,000 Inhabitants.' Tourists on fast trains to California whiz past asking, 'Don't we ever get through the desert?'"

"Are you sorry for Mrs. Brewer?" "Don't be! Of a pile of letters on my desk, here is the happiest. 'J. V.' is better. Last Saturday she closed early to speak at the prohibition rally in the Baptist church. Swaying one's audience brings the same thrill in Tucson as in New York. The postmistress, Mrs. Brewer's candidate, has been elected president of the new business women's club. Furthermore, Leora Brewer has just been asked to travel through the state in the interests of a big national organization."

"Of course, I won't take salary for work so near my heart," she writes. "Store clerk as I am, I manage to make a comfortable amount so that I can do this other work for pleasure."

All this the story of a few weeks back. There's another letter from Mrs. Brewer today. It, too, is scribbled, but this time on a train. Mr. Brewer's illness in May proved more serious than she had let herself believe, and the reason for living in the desert country is passed.

Her brief little correspondence card says, "I am almost home." Then her honesty puts a question mark, thus, home (?), and goes on, "that is, my native home, where I shall visit. I plan to remain in Arizona. I have my business, the furniture store. And there also, I believe, is my field for the Master."

So she's going back to the desert country, that isn't a desert for her. When the Arizona Star has included her in a series on "Interesting Tucsonians"; when as a daughter and wife of a storekeeper and proprietor of a store she has learned to write ads that attract attention and customers; when she feels that "city parks cannot make up for country in the best climate on earth"; and when a girlhood vow to help create a dry country has brought an additional field of usefulness and honor, why should Mrs. Brewer have anything but love for Arizona?

Don't Air Grievances

There is something infinitely pathetic in the uncomplaining fashion in which lower-middle-class French women are now demeaning themselves. Among them there is cherishing of grievances (except that of the closing of the convents); not a touch of that rankling sense of wrong that is so rare among their English sisters; hardly a trace of any effort to draw attention to their distress, and have a remedy for it devised. On the contrary, it almost seems as if their one wish was to hide the fact that they are poor, to keep themselves and their poverty well out of sight.—Edith Sellers in the Atlantic.

"Genius" Now Forgotten

Mouldering in a London cellar lies the life work of a British artist, who in his day was regarded as the equal of Turner. It consists of the Biblical canvases of John Martin, whom the first Lord Lytton pronounced "the most original genius of his age" and Ruskin called one of the four painters who had "the most influence on the ordinary Protestant mind." Martin's pictures were exhibited in Europe and America, were wondered at by the people and engraved to be the ornaments of gift books and the walls of homes of the pious.

MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY HAS STRONG BASKETBALL TEAM

One of the strongest of Mid-West basketball teams is this one, of the Michigan university. Top row, left to right—Coach Mather, Kenrick, Steger, Sperry, Doyle, Brown, Kruger. Second row—Morgante, Deng, Henderson, Captain Birks, McWood, Kipke. Bottom row—Haggerty, Stegmeir, Kress, Welch, Cherry, and Landre. Captain Birks, shown in the inset, is considered one of the best players at the university.

MAJOR LEAGUE TEAMS TO DO SOME DODGING

To Avoid Conflict of Games on Way From South.

Major league teams that train in Florida this spring include both leagues and both sections of the leagues. When they get through with their preliminary work most of them will start North a week or so before the season begins on their own grounds, and on the way up will engage in exhibition games. The result is that most of them are at their wits' ends to dodge each other on the way home. South Carolina and North Carolina and Georgia and Alabama will see more big league baseball next spring than they have seen since 1911.

The White Sox and the Giants will ride north through territory that neither of them has touched for years. Probably they will play at Atlanta, Birmingham and some city in South Carolina from which they can make an easy jump towards the "interior" north.

It has been years since the Giants have visited Atlanta and Birmingham. The latter has one of the finest plants in the South for baseball. When it was first completed many seasons ago the Giants played a game on the field and they never have been there since. The old stand at Atlanta, which was as good as any wooden stand that the South had, burned down last year and Atlanta is to have something better and more modern.

Perhaps the Sox and the Giants will play at Chattanooga. From Chattanooga the Giants can turn towards New York easily enough and the Sox will go their way to their first game. The Giants intended to play an exhibition game in Cleveland, April 14, but the season is to open April 15, the Giants will turn their way towards New York three or four days before then in order to get back to the Polo Grounds ready for the season to begin.

The Sox and Giants in combination through the Southeast will be something the fans in that part of the world have not seen for many years.

Youngest on Navy Team Is This Year's Captain

Gift of $100,000 Voted for Penn State's Gym

Hugo Bezdek, director of physical education at the Pennsylvania State college, announced at a student meeting that a gift of $100,000 had been voted by the college alumni athletic advisory committee toward the erection of the proposed $500,000 gymnasium for men. An additional $10,000 for a women's gymnasium was also included.

The entire sum is payable in three years as a part of the college effort to provide $2,000,000 for student health and welfare buildings.

American institution. The high school is distinctly an American institution. The English high school of Boston, founded in 1821, was the first of its kind and gradually, as free elementary schools were established throughout the country, the high schools followed.

In the Good Old Days

In the long ago, when Gleason, McGraw, Jennings and others were on that famous old Baltimore Oriole team, they finished the season, played their final exhibition game and each man was handed his check and his transportation home.

The gang had dinner together, and during it a big argument came up regarding a certain kind of a play. They scrapped and argued for some time. Then, although all had their tickets in their pockets, they stayed over till the next day so they could try out the disputed play on the ball field.

It's hard to imagine a group of players doing such a thing in this day and age.

Stengel Has "Dope" on Hard-Hitting Pitchers

With the lively ball in vogue, pitchers like their base hits as well as any other player on the field. As a result pitchers instead of standing passive and listening to the umpire yell strike, or merely taking a weak swing at the ball, always have a healthy cut.

Glance over the batting averages and you will find several pitchers among the batting-elect.

In the National league Casey Stengel is the clown of the organization—the "Nick Altrock" of the circuit. Stengel, aside from being a pretty clever comedian, has a keen sense of humor when he figures as the target in some humorous happening.

A number of Giant players were discussing the ability of certain pitchers to hit. Some of the players thought Jack Bentley the hardest hitting pitcher, others leaned to George Uhle of Cleveland.

"You guys are all wrong about the hardest hitting pitchers," said Stengel, who had been listening in on the argument. "Take it from me Luque of Cincinnati and Weinert of Philadelphia are the hardest hitting pitchers in baseball."

"How do you figure that?" asked one of the players.

"That's easy," replied Stengel. "Didn't each one of those guys knock me down with one punch? Those bables are champions."

Stengel had runups with both the pitchers mentioned and didn't even get a draw.

Fred Haney, infielder of the Detroit Tigers, who is wintering in Los Angeles, has been suffering from tonsillitis and recently had the offending organs removed.

News comes from Williamstown, Mass., that Jack Coombs, one-time pitcher, has been engaged to coach the baseball team of Williams college again next spring.

Bob McAllister, former national 100-yard champion, who was considered a point winner for the American Olympic team, announced that he would not be a candidate. He is going to retire and become a tenor singer.

To Homer Hazel, of Rutgers, goes the distinction of making the longest forward pass of the year, a fling that traveled exactly 69 yards, and which netted a gain of 55 yards. Hazel made the pass against Villa Nova, Anderson, end, completing the catch.

Despite frequent assaults made during the recent season by French athletes the record of 2:33 for the one kilometer run in France stands. There were times when it appeared in danger, but the mark set by Henri Arnaud withstood all efforts to better it.

Chet Bowman, brilliant Syracuse star, caught the opening kickoff in the William and Mary game on his own goal line and kicked the full length of the gridiron, 100 yards, for a touchdown, aided by his own dazzling speed and fine interference. This was the longest run back of a kickoff the year developed.

Manila Stadium Plans

The Pacific Amateur Athletic federation of Manila will endeavor to secure a site for the new Jose Rizal Memorial stadium in Harrison park, Manila. It is planned to rush the big structure to completion so as to have it in shape for the seventh Far-Eastern Olympic games in 1925. The Philippines is the only member of the Far-Eastern A. A. without a permanent stadium. China has one in Shanghai and Japan constructed one at Osaka for this year's renewal of games.

Newburgh Has Crossing Problem

City Assesses Its Willingness to Pay Part of State's Share to Secure Elimination of Water Street Grade Crossing.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Albany, Feb. 14.—George H. Walker, attorney, and George A. Noren, engineer of grade crossings, Col. Raphael A. Egan, corporation counsel of the City of Newburgh, and Major McKay representing the Newburgh Chamber of Commerce, appeared before the Public Service Commission yesterday in answer to an order to show cause why the Commission should not rescind an order made in 1918 directing the elimination of the South Water Street grade crossing of the West Shore Railroad. This order was made during the war and that time was largely based on the increased traffic occasioned by the shipyards then very active in the southern portion of Newburgh. The work was not progressed immediately after the war on account of the then existing high prices. Subsequent to when the Commission asked that the work proceed it was found that the cost might be more than the Commission had contemplated paying as the state's share and certainly more than the funds available for the use of the Commission would permit. This increased cost was largely occasioned by the possibility of the Erie Railroad Company, seeking a very substantial sum for an easement across its right of way. The city authorities endeavored to negotiate a settlement which would bring the cost within the money available but despite such efforts as were made it did not appear to the Commission that the work could be done for an amount equal to that which could be expended in view of the then existing funds set aside as the state's share. Since no other funds are available and since it was necessary to either have the work proceed with assurance that the cost to the state would not exceed that which it had available or that the money which was being held for this work might be being used in some other location in connection with a number of applications already before the Commission, the show cause order was made.

The New York Central Railroad Company at the hearing today stated it was ready to proceed at any time, and the City of Newburgh stated it was ready to pay more than contemplated in the original estimates of the cost. An opportunity was asked by the representatives of the city to consult with the Erie Railroad Company before the Commission made any further order. This opportunity was given by adjourning the hearing until Thursday, February 28, at Albany.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Feb. 14.—The stock market opened generally heavy today. Selling orders appeared throughout the list, causing fractional losses in most cases. Anaconda was an exception rising 1/2 to 35 1/2.

Heaviness in the oil group featured forenoon trading. Steels held barely steady. Rails, equipments, motors and industrials gave a fairly good account of themselves.

HOW MAN WILL LOOK 500 YEARS FROM NOW

Will Be Weaker, Owing to Mechanical Aids.

The last 500 years record a gradual change in man. His physical powers have become weaker, his senses are less keen, his teeth are worse, and he would be unable to stand for any length of time the hardships of his forebears.

This weakening process will not stop today. Therefore, in considering the average man of 500 years hence we must obviously expect him to be a far weaker creature than he is today, owing to the use of many artificial aids.

We cannot expect any striking physical changes in the man of 2423, writes Prof. A. M. Low, for it takes thousands of years to alter our structure, but he will in all probability seek to improve his body by grafting and electrical treatment and by permanently fixed mechanical appliances, such as sight correctors—a great improvement on the present clumsy glasses.

He will dress in sensible and comfortable one-piece clothing in place of the absurd conglomeration of clothes worn at present and, owing to the increase in baldness, will wear a hat of some description practically all the time.

Just as our modern meals are of less importance to us than the "spreads" of olden times, so will the future man pay even less attention to food; one meal a day will possibly suffice, assisted, if necessary, by "snacks" in concentrated form, and compared with today his standards of living will be extremely luxurious.

His lower limbs will become atrophied from disuse, for his methods of travel on moving sidewalks and communicating by wireless will render any strenuous travel unnecessary.

His educational standard will be very high without any exception; thought will be an infinitely quicker process, and all amusements will be of an intellectual variety. Games of brute strength will die out, boxing will be regarded much as we regard the brutal prize fights of bygone days, and in every way it will be an age of brains and not brawn.

He will treat women in what we should regard as a most casual manner. He will think nothing of stopping one for a light for his pipe. By 2423 women will have educated and advanced themselves more rapidly than at present seems possible, and will thus be in a position to compete with man in every way. However, as he will scientifically understand "love," he will treat it with far greater respect.

His life will be, relatively speaking, far more complex than ours, and by 2423 the study of wave motion will have led to the habitual use of wireless sight, and many other developments of that period.

The mental transference of thought at present claimed by many tricksters, but not a scientific fact, will be thoroughly understood, and that point alone will increase efficiency and speed up his mode of life generally. He will most certainly use a shorter phonetic system of spelling.—London Express.

Prisma Girls Hold Banquet

The Prisma banquet which was held in the lunch room of the Kingston High School on February 13th, at 6 o'clock, was most successful from every viewpoint. The Prisma girls had as their guests, Principals and Mrs. Van Ingen, Miss Schnitzler, Miss Fuller, Miss Easley, Miss Cordes and Mrs. Charles Roach, formerly a faculty adviser of the organization, "St. Valentine," really provided the scheme of decorations, the favors being small clusters of sweet peas and smilax. The toast mistress was Miss Marion Phillips, the president, Miss Katherine Bennett gave "The History of Prisma," Miss Beth Blankfield, told "What Prisma Has Done," Miss Mary Hubbard, explained "Why Prisma Does It," Miss Marianne Gorham gave a "Humorous Sketch," while Principal Van Ingen spoke on "Prisma's Part in School Life." Then the school song was sung, and there were parodies and a general good time.

The menu was as follows—Chicken patties, mashed potatoes, celery, green peas, jelly, rolls, pepper and cheese salad, fruited Jello with whipped cream. The public may be interested to learn that this simple but really delicious menu served at a banquet, was worked out by committees under the direction of Miss Schnitzler; the work was done by the girls of the organization and the cost a plate was only twenty-five cents. There were one-hundred and seven present.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS.

Opera House is showing five new acts of vaudeville for the balance of the week and the screen version of James Oliver Curwood's "The Man From Ten Strike," the picture being entitled "Gold Madness."

Keeney's is showing "Little Johnny Jones," with Johnny Hines, one of the newest finds among film comedians, said to rival George M. Cohan. The picture is a drama of the turf, with a sweetheart, a gambler and a lot of gangsters.

Six big time vaudeville acts are on the program at The Orpheum for the last half of the week starting today, featuring Pozzini's Monkeys and entitled "A Day at the Hippodrome." The picture is "Mothers-in-Law," a tale of court simplicity and city intrigues, of heartaches and love and laughter.

At the Auditorium today are Florence Vidor and Monte Blue in Sinclair Lewis's famous novel of American life, "Main Street," which contains all the typical characters of this great American novel faithfully brought to life and woven into a screen masterpiece to thrill, entertain and surprise.

Odd Kind of Fish.

No fish is stranger than the little sea-horse. It has a body encased in rings of bony mail, a horse-shaped head set at right angles and a prehensile tail to grasp seaweed in which it hides. It always floats with its queer head up and erect. Another peculiar thing about the sea-horse is that the male fish carries the eggs in a pouch situated under his tail until the young are hatched and large enough to look out for themselves.

New Idea in Electric Sifter.

A manufacturer of a successful electric sifter, which has been used as a sand sifter on the molding floor of foundries and for similar purposes, has developed this idea in making a device that sifts out material suspended in liquids. The machine is wholly inclosed except for the half-closed top which prevents the liquor from splashing over.

Sparrow Hawk Useful.

There is a long list of hawks in the country, and the sparrow hawk is the smallest of the family, says Nature Magazine. In so far as our interests are concerned, it is a most useful bird, for it feeds on mice, on not a few insect pests, as crickets and grasshoppers, also on spiders and the rest.

Lowered the Temperature.

I proposed for the first time to the girl of my heart on the crowded platform of an elevated station during the well-known rush hour. It was a cold, miserable evening and I wasn't warmed up at all by the young lady's curt and cutting refusal.—Chicago Journal.

Guaranteed Relief from Rheumatic Pain with New Powder from Italy

Shake it in Your Shoes—No Medicine to Take

Science has at last found a harmless, external treatment for Rheumatism. This new discovery has brought almost miraculous relief from pain to hundreds of even the so-called "hopeless" cases.

Alessandro Volta, the well-known Italian physicist for whom the electric volt was named, discovered a scientific combination of certain ingredients which he prepared in the form of a fine powder that is intended to be a powerful Uric Acid Solvent. This discovery he has called VOLTA. It is not taken internally, but is shaken into the shoes, where immediately it seems to be absorbed into the blood stream through the myriad pores of the feet. This absorption is aided by the fact that the soles of the feet contain 10 times the number of pores found in any other part of the body.

So remarkable and rapid have been the results from the use of this powder, that in this country and in Italy, that the American distributors have authorized the use of the very first package of your money will be refunded.

If you suffer from rheumatic pain, sciatica, lumbago, gout or neuralgia, you owe it to yourself to try this startling new, outside treatment. It is absolutely harmless and will not cost one cent if you do not receive wonderful relief.

You can get a box of Volta, with an absolute guarantee of quick relief, from any good druggist as: McBride Drug Store, S. Eltinge, Mahen & Walker, Bogart, Pharmacy, Weber's Pharmacy, County Drug Co.

Middletown Five Here Friday

Kingston High School's Varsity quint plays another league game Friday night at the high school gymnasium. The opponents of the locals are the Middletown High School five.

At the game at Middletown, Kingston easily defeated them and hope to repeat. Last week's defeat by Poughkeepsie has made the team work harder and has given them an added incentive.

The team has had two very good practices this week and in both practically no trouble at all in rolling the score up high. All the players are in good condition and are ready for a good game.

The following will probably be started by Coach Anderson. Captain Schmidt and Corrigan, forwards; Vost, center; McLane, Bucholtz or Stock, guards.

Foul Point Won for Kingston

Nestor and Husta Cage, Each a One-pointer, Tied and Winning the Struggle Wednesday Evening Over Trenton 31 to 30—Visitors Outscored Kingston From the Floor.

The Trenton Metropolitan League quintet almost was the cause of wrecking the big drill shed at the armory court Wednesday evening. Probably the most exciting minutes of basketball was staged last evening on the local court so far this season. With but two minutes to go, the visitors leading by one point, Nestor, Morganweck's latest Metropolitan player, tied the score, making good from the foul line. With only seconds to complete the struggle Carl Husta sank one from the free throw line, pulling the Kingston team out a winner, score 31 to 30.

The reason for the tremendous outburst was due to the fact that what promised to be a victory for the local representatives hands down, proved otherwise. During the opening session, the local combination had a safe lead getting away to a perfect start. The score at half time saw Kingston in front of an 18 to 10 tally. The second half was entirely different, when the teams changed baskets. The Trenton outfit guarded very closely and made field goals in rapid fire order. Cutting down the lead of eight points, they passed the home team and brought the issue in doubt to the final seconds. All during the closing period the Morganwecks were unable to cage a basket from the field, a stunt never before accomplished on the local court.

Nestor, who has been playing with the Morganweck Amsterdam outfit, was in a forward position and the diminutive young player showed up very well, coming out second best in scoring with 9 points. Carl Husta was the leading scorer with 15 points, two from the playground and eleven out of eighteen from the penalty line. Barlow opposed Husta and played tough, causing the large number of fouls. Stretch Anderson jumped center and was replaced by C. Powers in the second period, as he had to catch a train. Artus and Newman played in the guard positions. As usual the clever passing of Newman accounted for many of the baskets.

Kearns and Barlow did the best work for the visitors, caging three fields each during the final session.

Annay Davey, former New York State League referee, made his initial appearance last night. Davey called a total of 56 fouls during the contest, twenty-four on Kingston, of which number Trenton made good 8, and thirty-two on Trenton, the locals making good 17.

Kingston by taking this game stands a better show for the last half honors. On Saturday evening the Greenpoint team plays here and on Sunday evening Kingston travels.

Foul Point Won for Kingston

back to the Greenpoint court. Taking these games will do much to land the local representatives in a striking position.

The visiting team was very poor from the penalty line, but they outscored Kingston from the floor. Trenton missed the first eleven tries from the complimentary line. A large number witnessed the game, many enjoying the dancing which followed.

Cornell Team Coming to Yost Field House

Because of the importance of opening the Yost Field house to track competition with an important event the athletic authorities of the University of Michigan have secured the consent of Cornell university to hold the 1924 indoor meet at Ann Arbor instead of at Ithaca. The indoor meet with Cornell has been the longest continued of any of the competitions at Waterman gymnasium and is considered a fitting event for the opening of the new structure to track competition.

DETROIT MANAGEMENT FINALLY SOLD VEACH

Veteran Outfielder Was on Market for Three Years.

The sale of Bob Veach to Boston marks the culmination of three years' effort on the part of the Tiger management to peddle the veteran gardener.

A hitter of no mean ability and a fielder as good as the average, Veach, nevertheless, has never fitted in the scheme of things according to Cobb's ideas, a tendency to slow thinking probably having something to do with it.

In going to the Red Sox under Lee Fohl and Bob Quinn, Veach will be working for a pair to whose downfall he contributed in no small degree two years ago, when they had the Browns battling the Yankees for the pennant. Toward the end of September that year the Browns, just a lap behind New York, stopped over in Detroit on their way home, winding up their last invasion.

The clubs went into the eleventh inning tied, and then, with two out and two on, Dauss passed Tobin to get at Eddie Foster.

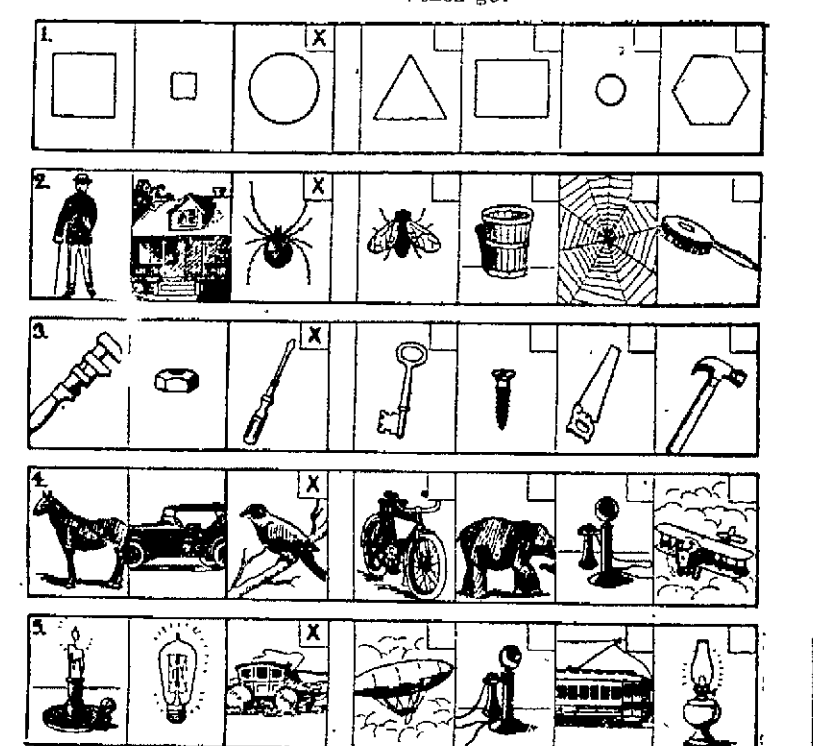

Foster took a toe hold and swung, and three runners started homeward as the ball wingers down the left-field foul line about two feet off the ground. It looked like a certain triple, but Veach, playing deep, raced over, dived clear of terra firma and speared the ball with his bare hand, sprawling out after he made the catch, which was of the "impossible" variety.

Pruett blew in the thirteenth and the Tigers romped in. Incidentally, as is well known, St. Louis finished just one game behind New York.

Bitter Chocolate.
The Grocer's Encyclopedia says that according to the United States standards, bitter chocolate is a mass obtained by grinding cocoa nibs without the removal of any constituent except the gum. When this ground bean, in cocoa form, is sweetened and flavored it is known as sweet chocolate. Cocoa is the ground bean from which part of the oil or fat has been extracted. Cocoa cannot be made into chocolate.

Joe Choynski Now House Mover in Chicago City

Joe Choynski, old-time fighter of the days of Corbett, Peter Jackson, Jim Hall and Bob Fitzsimmons, has come to Chicago and plunged into the work of beautifying the big city in its changes now going on. He joined a construction firm with George Schrosch, brother of Al, another former fighter, now dead, and is engaged in moving houses to make several streets wider. The houses are moved scientifically. The families are not asked to move and in five hours the water, gas and electric lights are again hooked up and life goes on under the new conditions. Some brick houses have the front cut off as if with a big cheese knife. Joe is superintendent of the construction gang doing this work and enjoys it. It is out of doors and he occasionally swings a pick-ax to get through some tough cement and finds it exhilarating.

A Mean Job.
"Do you remember the time when your father drove a donkey cart?" The candidate for election fixed his glasses and gazed thoughtfully at the interrupter. Then he replied: "As a matter of fact, I had quite forgotten the cart. But I am thankful to see the donkey is still alive."
